P. K. YONGE LABORATORY SCHOOL
UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA

Erected in 1933, the $350,000 Laboratory School of the University of Florida was named in memory of one of the state's educational leaders for many years, P. K. Yonge, of Pensacola. Here the University is conducting an extensive program in educational research and maintains a laboratory school from the kindergarten to the 12th grade.

Dear Dorothy:
I saw U of Fla. play Villanova last night. It was a good game. Most Rosen come through here this morning going to Sav. Sun School didn't show up, as usual. All didn't let me know anything either. Regrets! Love, Johnnie
